For me, English (Hons.) is not a choice at all it's something which is given by circumstances. I never thought of pursuing this course but always that doesn't happen which you thought. Some happened with me. I'm still trying to find this course interesting but I believe may be one day I'll be happy for my decision of taking this course. I'm not at all satisfied with course because I leave behind many dreams of mine to just pursuing BA (Hons.) not for course actually, they all leave because of 'Delhi University'. After completing 12 I just never thought to come DU for further studies but circumstances led me to this course. And, for me DU was not important when I went to exam hall but between the time period of exam till result life take an unusual turn which led me to BA (Eng.) from DU.
