

wikiHow celebrates the 50,000th article milestone!

Search

Home > Categories > Computers and Electronics > Internet > Website and Blog Creation > Blog Basics

How to Write a Deep and Thoughtful Blog Post People Will Want to Read

Here is the guide to becoming an entertaining and contemporary writer on you blog. You probably already know what a blog is and how to write in it.

Steps

[\[edit\]](#)

1. Find a song that is sad, slow, deep, dreamy, floaty, thoughtful, and/or makes you want to cry, sob, remember, and/or sleep.
2. Play it at a reasonable volume on repeat and close your eyes for a while as you listen.
3. Open up your eyes once you feel floaty and dreamy enough.
4. Choose a deep topic you feel close to (e.g., nostalgia and remembrance, life and death, war and peace, racism and prejudice, etc.).
5. Start with a sentence that captures people's attention. It needs to be something punchy.
6. Continue on about the subject, as much as you can, but be sure you actually have something to say, if your writing is just self-indulgent meanderings nobody will want to read it.
7. Once you feel like you've written as much you want (or can), end the post with a conclusion, make it something that will get people's attention.
8. Title your post. You can name it the title of the song you listened to, the title of a book or movie that coincides with your topic, a saying or idiom that relates to your post, or something that you make up yourself.

Tips

[\[edit\]](#)

- Use your heart and mind at the same time. Say things that you believe in and are true to yourself.
- Make references to movies, books, songs, or anything. This only adds depth to your writing.
- Don't worry if you end up talking about some topic completely different from what you started with. You can always end with something like this: "And now I've slowly drifted completely off topic from what I started talking about. Funny how that happens. It's like life."

- At the end of your post, add a quote. They really spice up and dramatize your post. A line from the song you were listening to is great.
- One word titles are great and easy to think up.
- If you've used a word in your blog that emphasizes your topic/post, look up a synonym or the definition of that word, and use it as your title.

Warnings

[\[edit\]](#)

- Don't call people's points of view foolish, or other derogatory terms.
- Don't call people fools, even if you think they are.
- Don't tell them their thoughts are only worth laughing at.
- Don't criticize silly things like someone's use of font. They may have visual problems or simply want to break up the sterility of the written word.

Related wikiHows

[\[edit\]](#)

- How to Exercise an Open Mind
- How to Become a Philosopher
- How to Perform Self Hypnosis
- How to Write a Famous Blog

Ads by Google

- Blog AdSense
Have a blog? Earn revenue from relevant ads - Try Google AdSense
www.google.com/adsense
- Add Ratings to Your Site
Easy to install, Free, No Ads Listen to your Visitors NOW!
js-kit.com

Embed this: Republish this entire article on your blog or website.

Categories: Blog Basics

Authors

KevRyan, Travis Derouin, Anonymous, Tom Viren, Ben Rubenstein, Bryan E. Hall, MPW, Michael Hoyle, Flickety, Nicole Willson, Andy C Zhang, Milos Karalius

Thanks to all authors for creating a page that has been read 8,170 times.

All text here is freely available to copy, adapt, and distribute under the terms of the Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-ShareAlike 2.5 License.

All text shared under a Creative Commons License.

Powered by MediaWiki.

wikiHow is a carbon neutral website