What I believe...

My Vision: to inspire others to embrace the capabilities of e-learning, by supporting them to identify individual learning needs by engaging students in personalised, active and interactive learning.

- The use of all technologies should be underpinned by effective pedagogy.
- E-learning has huge potential to support the needs of all learners' particularly those with diverse needs.
- Building trusting relationships is paramount to successful change management.
- Professional learning should be guided by the needs of learners and should be active, engaging and practical.
- Culture counts and is an essential understanding necessary to develop a learner's potential.
- Effective leadership is characterised by vision, creativity, collaboration and the modelling of desired behaviours.
- Data collection and reporting are vital in ascertaining impact on student learning.
