

This is an example of the completed wall display from the alliteration work Pinehill Pupils Ponder Positively. It was originally completed alongside a book called Billy the Punk. Billy the Punk became an in-depth study of graffiti, punks and what they offer/mean to society and how The Pinehill Way fits into a belief system. The wall contains everything Pinehill has to offer in the way of programs, sports, activities, choirs, support, friendship, sense of community etc. It also has words of encouragement and words that reflect the Pinehill Way. The wall is constantly referred to throughout the year as reinforcement of behaviour and also to reflect on the many occasions when 'catching them being good'. The wall is bright, colourful, attractive and full of the children's own work which they are proud of. The words, instead of being crafted in graffiti by hand, could be published using fonts such as Cracked, Curly, Lucida Blackletter etc. This would be reinforcing lessons from the previous year e.g. opening a document, writing a word or statement, highlighting it the word, changing the font, the size, then apple P to print. Fine motor skills then put to good use with the cutting.
